

Enlisted Elite

Peter Lee

This scenario challenges players to create squads using a core set of characters drawn from the new Star Wars Miniatures: Rebel Storm™ expansion. Only common and uncommon characters are specified, so players can play without a specifically required rare character.

Squad Construction

One player plays the Imperials, and the other player plays the Rebels. Both players roll randomly on the table below to determine the set of core characters that their squad must include (out of the standard 100 points for squad construction).

If either player is missing any of the characters required by the scenario, reroll that result.

Rules

The game is played using the standard skirmish rules.

At the end of the first skirmish, both players add up the point cost of the characters they defeated. Players then switch sides, and construct a new squad using the same core characters that their opponent used in the previous skirmish. After fighting a second skirmish with these new squads, the two players again calculate the cost of defeated figures.

The player with the highest total score from both games wins.
